LOCAL ROUTE 28 SECTION WILL COST ABOUT $6,000,000

WORK PROGRESSES ON RTE. 28 AS BIDS GO OUT FOR NEW SECTION

Footings for the last pier of the West St. Bridge that will span relocated Rte. 28 were poured Tuesday morning. Work on the new roadway has been progressing despite the soggy state of the ground but is expected to speed up greatly as the ground dries out.

Meanwhile, State Public Works Commissioner Anthony N. DiNatale stated in a report to Gov. Furcolo that two important state highway links worth an estimated $12,000,000 will be under construction this spring.

In Wilmington, a three-mile section of Interstate Rte. 93 (Relocated Rte. 28) will cost an estimated $6,000,000, 90% of which will be paid by the federal government's bureau of public roads.

Interstate Rte 93 will ultimately form a bee-line express highway between Boston and New Hampshire and its total cost will approach $80,000,000 for its 26-mile length.

Commissioner DiNatale said the Wilmington proposal includes the construction of six bridges to carry the eight-lane, divided expressway over the B. & M. railroad tracks, a brook, the Ipswich River, Concord Street and under relocated Park Street and relocated Rte. 62.

Fifty percent of the total expressway will be under way when work starts on this section. Plans and studies are continuing to be developed by M. D. P. W. engineers on other segments of the interstate route.

Bids for this section will be opened on April 15 and the work will take two years to complete.

Each roadway will consist of two 13-foot and two 12-foot lanes plus a ten-foot shoulder. The roadways will be seperated by a forty-foot median strip for motoring safety.

In Middleborough, the second section of the Rte. 28 relocation project will get underway.

The four-mile, $6-million project will receive 50% aid from the federal government. Work south of this section is now under way.

The project will by-pass the heavily congested Middleborough Circle which has long been a bottleneck for Cape-bound motorists. The expressway will ultimately be linked to Amvets Memorial Highway (Rte. 24) in the Bridgewater-Raynham area.

Commissioner DiNatale said the project, entirely on new locations, includes the construction of five bridges to carry the expressway over Nemesket River, South Main Street, the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford Railroad, and under Bedford and Harding Streets.

Two 36-foot roadways will be constructed each having two 13-foot travel lanes plus a ten-foot shoulder. A forty-foot median strip will separate the roads.

Bids for the proposal will be opened April 22 and completion of the work is expected in the spring of 1960.

EVENING SCHOOL OPEN HOUSE DRAWS CROWD DESPITE WEATHER

Despite one of the worst storms of the year a good number of townsfolk turned out Thursday evening to admire the work of the Adult Evening School, displayed at the Open House at the High School.

Following the awarding of certificates to Miss Leiter's citizenship class by Supt. of Schools John Collins, Anthony DeLuca, director of the evening school, introduced the high school glee club, which rendered three delightful numbers.

A style show by the sewing classes featured a number of scene stealers, most of them under three. Mother and daughter costumes and toddler outfits threatened to steal the show from the adult styles which included the latest in slacks.

The gymnasium was abloom with color from the exhibits of rugs, braided and hooked, decorated ware, fabric painting, clothing, jewelry, upholstering, slip-covering, and many other arts taught at the evening classes. Furniture made in the woodworking class drew much attention.

Wilmington may well be proud of the talent displayed at the open house, another indication of the high standards set by Wilmington schools.

Wilmington 6th Grade To Receive Educational TV

Through the cooperation of parents kind enough to lend T-V sets to the classrooms, the pupils of Wilmington's sixth grades will participate in a unique new program this week.

The first in-school television program in this area begins on Friday, March 28, at 10:30 am with eight weekly half-hour elementary science programs on Channel 2.

The project, unique in the US because of its broad representation, has been developed and financed by 47 local public school systems, of which Wilmington is one. The programs, produced by the Eastern Mass. Council for School TV in cooperation with WBGH-TV channel 2, will be administered by the Mass. Executive Committee for School Television appointed by the Board of Education.

Eugene Gray, consulting teacher in elementary science for the Newton Schools, and Norman Harris, Education director of the Museum of Science will conduct the spring programs, two of which will originate directly from the Museum.

Interested parents in WGBH-TV's viewing area can "go to school" with their children, since the programs will be "open circuit" television which can be received on any television set within the 60-mile radius of WGBH-TV's transmitter.

This spring's single series is the forerunner of a full fall schedule. A half-hour program each weekday morning will be planned and telecast in conjunction with the participating school systems.

In September, additional programs will cover the fields of social studies and citizenship, music and art, literature and drama. The fifth series is to include many subjects in an omnibus presentation, in line with the planners' policy of utilizing the great number of educational and cultural resources in the area. All the telecasts are supplemental in nature and are being presented to enrich and enhance the basic curriculums of the elementary grades.

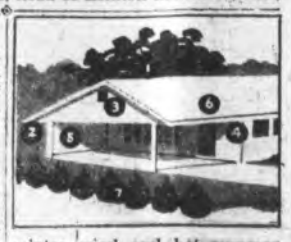
Cut Air Conditioning Costs

"If homeowners will practice what the experts preach," says John W. Norris, noted authority on air conditioning, "maintenance costs can be cut by up to one-third per year. Air conditioning today is efficient and economical, taking the loads off men's minds as well as the body." Mr. Norris, head of Lennox Industries, Inc., has these cut-the-cost suggestions to make:



1. East-West Roof Line — If a house is still in the blueprint stage, plan for an east-west roof line—it will cut down considerably on the sun load.

2. Roof Overhang — A well-designed roof overhang, which will effectively shade the southern portion of the house, offers protection from the summer sun but allows solar heating during the winter months.

3. Attic Ventilation—Despite insulation, every attic should have an air vent of some kind to prevent heat building up during the sunny hours and diffusing through the house during the night.

4. Insulation—Of primary importance in all sections of the country is good insulation. An extra-thick layer in ceilings and several inches in walls will more than pay for itself as a guard against extremes in temperature.

5. Garage or Carport—An attached garage or carport on the east or west wall acts as an excellent shield against cold winter wind and hot summer sun.

6. Light Roof and Walls—Paint the roof and walls of the house a light color—or white—in order to get maximum reflection of the sun's rays. (Yellow and white have proved to be the most effective reflectors.)

7. Trees and Shrubs—Trees and hardy shrubs should be planted along the east and west walls to shade the house in summer and shield it from wind in winter. Trees that overhang the roof give tremendous protection. (A trellis also acts as a guard against summer sun, but permits the sun's rays to hit the outside walls of the house in winter.)

BOOSTERS, ARISE

There will be a meeting of the Wilmington Boosters at the Senior High School Cafeteria, on Thursday evening, at seven.

This is considered an important meeting, and we are hoping to see a good turnout. We, the Boosters, must get busy with the planning of the Spring Supper, and we need the help of YOU, THE BOOSTERS! We are all working in the same interests, and it is for the benefit of you, the youth of Wilmington that we extend our hands.

With the baseball season well under way, we are staring the Spring days in the face, even if it is a bit difficult to convince Mother Nature of this, one of these days she will awaken to this fact, and it will be a day very soon at hand. We must not wait for the last minute to do our planning; we must begin at once, today!

We wish very much, to keep our word to all of the Atheletes who carry our school colors onto the various fields of the surrounding townships, and who come home victorious. We will all want to be part of the plan at times like these, and the best way to show our school spirit is to support our Boosters.

We want to be a group that will be remembered years from now; as a group of staunch backers, that brought our teams through one of the most successful years they have enjoyed in many years.

The success, or failure of the Boosters rests with you, the young people, and the young at heart, who do not let the teams down.

SEE YOU THURSDAY AT SEVEN: PLACE: HIGH SCHOOL "CAF."

Wilmington Realtors Hear Sales Tax Talk

Wilmington's County Real Estate Company was well represented Monday evening at the meeting of the Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors at the Colonial Country Club in Lynnfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Fenton and Mr. and Mrs. James Lester attended the dinner. Mrs. Lester is the latest addition to the County family.

Among the legislators attending were State Senator Frederick McDermott of the 6th Middlesex District. Rep. Gardner Campbell, Rep. Charles Gibbons, Rep. Thomas Donahue, Rep. Frank Tanner, Rep. Lloyd Conn and Rep. and Mrs. Theodore Vaitses.

Feature of the evening was an informative talk by Bertram A. Druker, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association.

Ray Hofford, executive vice-president of the association also spoke. Mr. Hofford pointed out the value to a realtor of a lively interest in the political scene. He also spoke of the merits of the new license law, and the protection it afforded qualified realtors. The value of publicity and local news items were also touched upon.

Mr. Druker spoke mainly on the proposed sales tax. Maintaining that high corporate and real estate taxes were keeping industry out of Massachusetts, Mr. Druker advocated the passing of the sales tax bill which, he stated, would alleviate the high real estate taxes burdening the Commonwealth.

Mr. Druker was given a standing ovation following his talk.

FOOT HEALTH IN DIABETES

Diabetics will live longer, more happily and more efficiently if they will learn to take good care of their feet.

It is a well known fact that the feet are danger points for the diabetics, and lack of caution in caring for this part of the body, neglect in cleanliness, and the use of instruments in the home as well as the commercial remedies utilized to so-call remove corns may, and too often does, produce serious results. From such home treatment the diabetic may create an ulcer or other infection which sometimes refuses to heal and the end result is amputation. Though this is a harsh statement it is known to be true. The way to prevent such serious conditions is to know the truth and what to do about it.

The diabetic should always be aware of any conditions which affect the feet. The most common are: the so-called corns, calluses thickened or ingrown nails, bunion, hammer toes, or an unusual change on the surface tissue of the feet.

Under no circumstance should the diabetic attempt to treat these conditions nor apply any medication to these areas without proper supervision. To do this is to invite the possibility of more serious results and probably lead to invalidism.

The diabetic should examine his own feet not less than once a week for corns, calluses, fissures between the toes, raw places, sores, and other troubles. If you can't do this yourself have some careful member of the family do it for you. Also avail yourself of frequent foot examination by a chiropodist-podiatrist in your community. In most instances your physician will advise that you consult a chiropodist for professional treatment.

The best way for the diabetic to insure himself of good health is to follow religiously a daily regime such as the following:

1. Daily cleansing with warm water and mild soap.
2. Gentle massage of the feet with application of lanolin.
3. Keep the feet warm with heavy socks, do not apply any other heat unless so directed by your physician.
4. Do not wear any circular type garters, and wear comfortable soft-toed shoes.
5. Care of nail, and the other conditions mentioned earlier in this article should be left to your Chiropodist.

In conclusion it is well to impress upon the diabetic of to-day that due to the advances of modern medicine, research, and also the advances made in modern Chiropody this condition and it's serious aftermaths is now well controlled. On the other hand, the many agencies, of which the Lowell Layman's Diabetes Society is one, available and most willing to assist the diabetic by providing the necessary information needed. Therefore, whether you the diabetic, lives a normal active and useful life depends upon how you avail yourself of these services.

Dr. G. Wesley Sawyer received his degree of Doctor of Surgical Chiropody (DSC) at the Ohio College of Chiropody, Cleveland, Ohio.

He interned in the New England Foot Clinics and Long Island Hospital, Boston.

Is a member of the American Podiatory Association, The Mass. Chiropody Association, and is Secretary of Division #3 of the Mass. Chiropody Association.

More recently Dr. Sawyer was appointed attending Podiatrist, Lowell General Hospital Outpatient Department.

Dr. Sawyer is a member of the Board of Directors of the Lowell Layman's Diabetes Society.

Violations of the law are responsible for seven out of ten fatal highway accidents. How you and your community can help prevent traffic accidents will be discussed by nationally recognized authorities at the 37th Massachusetts Safety Conference, March 17 and 18, at the Hotel Statler Hilton in Boston. Call the Massachusetts Safety Council for your program.

TALK OF THE TOWN

By HANK FILIPPONE

At a special meeting of the Board of Selectmen last Saturday, Chief Tax Assessor Alfred Calabrese was appointed as temporary Town Manager. He assumed his duties Monday and will remain as T. M. until applications for the job come through. At this writing, only one application has been received, that of the former Town Manager of North Adams, where the townsfolks had voted against Town Manager form of Government. Notice of the vacancy has been posted among the Town and City Managers Associations and it is expected that applicants will soon be making themselves known.

Alan Fenton, of 31 Fairmeadow Road has just received conformation of his appointment to the Wilmington Housing Board by State Housing Board Chairman John E. Maloney. Alan was formerly on the Housing Board by virtue of election but did not chose to run again when his term had expired.

Joe Courtney stated at his last meeting, Saturday, that he had appointed Arnold Blake as a member of the water board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ralph Babcock. He also stated that he heard unofficially that the Federal Government had granted to the Town of Wilmington an additional $10,000 for planning purposes through the Department of Commerce.

A decision from the U. S. Supreme Court ruled that government owned facilities being used in privately owned plants are subject to local taxation.

Mr. Courtney proposed that the AVCO Sewerage project go out for bids at approximately April 15, and that construction should start around May 15.

Avco intends to move into their first building on July 1.

The priests of the parish are grateful to the members of the Holy Name Society and to the members of the Sodality as well as all of those who helped to make the Green Whist a success. The whist was held last Friday evening in spite of the inclement weather.

This Friday evening, Mrs. John McAndrew and her committee will conduct the whist party at St. Dorothy's Hall.

They are also grateful to the members who conducted the Blitz Party for the proceeds of last Tuesday's party. Another party in this series will be held this coming Tuesday evening at St. Dorothy's Hall.

As My Garden Sleeps
By Mari Gold

To be a successful amature gardener, one thing must be kept in mind at all times. The amature must restrain himself and not be in a hurry to remove the mulches and coverings. It is better to be late in uncovering them than too early.

Look over your garden now and see if the wind had injured any of the plants. Before this last snow, I found some of mine had leaned and had to be tampled down into the earth or they would have died.

To have good cannas, they should be started in pots of light soil. The bulbs should be divided by cutting the eyes seperately. This way, they will have an early start outdoors, but not until all danger of frost is past.

It is also time now to start dahlias. Lay the roots upon a few inches of sand and water them freely to start them into growth. In this manner, they may be easily divided and you may have as many cutting as you wish. Plant them in a pot so they will be well started by the time you are ready to plant them in the garden after the ground is warm.

By starting plants in the cellar or house, you will have blossoms much earlier. Do not have too high temperature or they will grow too fast.

If you have polyantha, hybrid, perpetual and rambler roses growing in the garden, they may be pruned of dead and broken branches now. Tender hybrid tea-roses should be left until later before being pruned or uncovered. The best time to do this is just before they begin to breed.

In the sheltered part of my garden, I noticed the daffodils beginning, it is not necessary to do much about these, but tulips and hyachinths will be endangered by freezing, so it is best to loosen the mulch, but keep them well covered and all mulch to the valient shoots which insist on coming up through as a cold night or wind will dry them out and injure the bulb.

I have forced some forsythia branches, but only green leaves appeared. The hot dry weather of last summer dried the buds out then when the fall rains came, it was too late for the buds to be revived.

The spring flower show always draws a crowd, but I wonder if the public appreciates the hard work, time and even headache or two which go into the planning of this beautiful event.

As I favor begonias as a hobby, I enjoyed the large display of these plants. I also enjoyed the large armyllis and orchids. A nice display of house plants was also on exhibit, quite a few of which I have written, but the african violet is still the most popular. I believe several growers were selling this lovely plant, and for those who bought them for the first time:

The soil must be kept moderately moist and it must never be given cold water. It must drink at least room temperature. Keep water off the foliage since this will cause spotting. If the temperature is from 69 to 70 degrees, you will have good results. If the blossoms become discolored, the temperature is too low. For this reason, it is best to remove the plant from the window on a cold night. To insure the bloom, keep plants out of direct sunlight.

The african violet is native to East Africa and was discovered by Varnon Walter Von Saint Paul. It was introduced into America from Europe over 25 years ago. This plant has enjoyed popularity longer than any other house plant.

The covered bridge at the show was quite an attraction, with a fine display of flower arrangements.

The Audubon Society had a display for anyone interested in birds. Our summer birds will soon be returning, so please don't forget to feed and water them, on these cold and stormy spring days.

FAMILY SERVICE OF GREATER LOWELL MARKS ITS 43RD YEAR OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

Family Service of Greater Lowell, located at 16 Shattuck St., is now in its 43rd year of operation in Lowell as a family counseling agency. Its staff of family counselors are professionally trained and experienced to strengthen family relationships. Family Service is ready to help when the husband and wife cannot get along together and wonder why; a couple needs help budgeting their income; parents and children misunderstand each other; a youngster gets into more and more trouble; the aged person feels useless, unwanted and needs to make new plans because of tension at home; a man or woman is unsure of himself and has trouble getting along with others on the job.

Many families have been helped by Family Service. In 1957, counseling services were given to 306 families representing 1390 people. One time it was a couple in their late 30's who had been married for 15 years. Mr. T. was a salesman who drove himself so hard to compete that he was neglecting his family without realizing it, until he and his wife were referred to Family Service.

Another time it was Sally age 10, who was referred to Family Service because she daydreamed in school, did poor work and seemed listless. By working with the child's parents, the family counselor was able to help them reduce the tensions and the insecurity that Sally felt both in her home and at school.

The central purpose of a family agency like Family Service of Greater Lowell is to contribute to harmonius family relationships, to strengthen the positive values in family life and to promote healthy personality development and satisfactory social functioning of various family members. The family, as the basic unit of society, has the major responsibility for preparing its members to fulfill their social roles at the progressive stages of development.

Effective treatment of family difficulties at any stage prevents worse damage to individuals and additional cost to the community. Referrals are often made by family doctors, attorneys, ministers, the school, or by the person himself who wants help. Appointments may be made by anyone by telephone. Although there is a fee according to one's ability to pay, no one is turned away because he cannot afford it. All inquiries and interviews are held in strict confidence.

Family Service of Greater Lowell is a member agency of the United Fund of Greater Lowell and is an affiliate member of the Family Service Association of America.

Kelley Named President Of Zonolite Company

The directors of Zonolite Company, Chicago, have elected J. A. Kelley president, it was announced today by A. T. Kearney, chairman of the board.

Kelley succeeds J. B. Meyers, who resigned. Meyers will continue his association with the company as a consultant.

Kelley joined Zonolite Company in 1946, and in his early tenure, was responsible for the development of the firm's extensive mining and milling developments in South Carolina, and for the installation and operation of Zonolite plants in many cities in the South and Central South areas. He also managed Zonolite sales activities in these sections.

In 1953 he became a vice president, and in 1956 was named executive vice president for the firm, in charge of all plants and mines, including the original vermiculite deposit at Libby, Montana.

A graduate of mining engineering from the University of Pittsburgh, Kelley formerly served with the U. S. Bureau of Mines and the War Production Board. He joined Zonolite Company after World War II naval service, where for a period he was part of a WPB mission to China on natural resources development.

Zonolite Company is the principal miner and manufacterer of vermiculite, a mica-like mineral widely used in building construction for its lightweight, fireproofing, insulating characteristics, and in other industries as a carrier for chemicals, conditioner, or filler. Zonolite products are processed in over 40 plants in the U. S. and Canada.

Navy Contest

National contests have awarded all sorts of prizes -- from trips around the world to blocks of granite. Now comes the oddest one of all. Thousands of youngsters will be doing their best, reports Chief Doucette to win a grand prize that's a mystery, and only the sponsors know what it is.

Called "Sealed Orders," the only unclassified information is that the winning youngster and his dad will be guests of the Navy Buddy Program of the Navy League on an exciting never-to-be forgotten trip, says Chief Doucette. The scope of the prize is indicated in that among the over one thousand runner-up prizes is a vacation for two on a Tucson, Arizona dude ranch and a $3,500 swimming pool.

Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Rear Admiral John J. Bergen, National President of the Navy League, and Rear Admiral Robert W. Berry, Regional President of the Navy League are the judges of the "Pride of the Navy" contest being sponsored as part of the national Navy stay-in-school education program by Revell, Inc., and the F. W. Woolworth Co. Contestants must identify scale models of Navy ships and planes and complete a sentence stating what they've learned by building ship and plane models.

Crusader Visits Flower Show — F. I. Carter In Prominent Position

by Mari Gold

How many of you were fortunate enough to have attended the spring flower show Perhaps many of you do not realize just what this show consists of. When speaking of this event, I encountered several people who thought it was a few vases filled with flowers for display purposes, such as we would see at our local fairs. They could hardly have been less correct.

It is difficult to comprehend the feats of magic which are performed inside the walls of the old Mechanics Building in Boston. Through a lot of hard work done by the committee and the growers, to say nothing of the many landscapemen, the outdoors is brought right inside. It would take a lot more space than I am allowed here to describe the entire show. I would like however, to mention displays put on by some of our neighboring business men.

The main attraction of the show was a beautiful old mission "Ramona's Wedding Place." This display was put on by the Horticultural Society. The landscape architect was Stevenson from Rockland Mass.

The portion of this display, however which I was most impressed by was that the cactus gardens, on both sides of the mission (and covering quite an expanse) were the work of F. I. Carter of Tewksbury. Mr. Carter traveled 125 miles into the desert of southern California to Borrielo Springs for the white flowers which were placed about the mission. The gardens, including a well on one side and a pool on the other were surrounded with what appeared to be hundreds of various types of cacti. As I was admiring this masterpiece, the mission bell began to toll, adding to the quiet charm of this old mission.

Another beautiful garden was done by Alexander Heimlich of Woburn. This garden had a big ledge with a waterfall as a backround. Spring flowers and ferns were growing right out of the cracks in the ledge.

Josh Thabedeau of Woburn also won a first prize award on a garden.

A week or so ago, I spoke of the Tree Peony in my column and a garden featuring this beautiful flower was done at the show by Marinus Vander Pol.

The Mass. Dept. of Public Works had an exhibit of Rte. 9, or perhaps any route in the western section of our state. Along the roadside mountain laurel was growing in abundance. A cooling brook flowed our native trees. Skunk cabbage, cowslips and pitcher plant were in full bloom with several blueberry bushes.

A rest area with the well-known green sign, complete with picnic benches and the ever-present orange trash barrel. A card on this most natural-loking exhibit stated that 2,500,000 people took advantage of just such rest areas as this last season.

Wilmington was not to be left out of this gigantic display of artistry, as many of the gardens were surrounded by rustic fences furnished by the Walpole Woodworking Co. of Wilmington. One garden was enclosed by a screen type fence used as a backround.

Walpole also had its own exhibit of rustic garden furniture which was most inviting, especially the swing. The small milking stools could find a spot fit for them in practically any garden or as an extra stool, perhaps beside the fire place.

The bouquets of flowers were beautiful too. Johnson Bros. of Woburn had a display of Camiclias which won a special prize. They also had the largest red roses I had ever seen. One variety, called Happiness and another, Yuletide, won first and second prizes.

Alexander Heimlich of Woburn also had a display of Callas and snapdragons which won a special award.

As I stood entranced by this magic, I couldn't help but think of all the work and months of planning which go into the flower show. All the wild flowers were dug last fall and kept in a cool spot until it was time to put them into a green house to be forced into leave and flower. It took men, and perhaps women with lots of growing skill to compete with mother nature in the spring flower show. It looks like magic, but it is really the hard work of many talented artists.

The sacred cantata "Olivet to Calvary" will be presented on Palm Sunday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock at the Congregational Church, Wilmington, by the church choir of twenty-four voices, as a special musical service commemorating the beginning of Holy Week.

"Olivet to Calvary", composed by the English church composer, J. H. Maunder to a text arranged and written by Shapcott Wensley, recalls the events of Christ's last few days before the Crucifixion. The rejoicing of the multitude with hesannas and palms, the view of Jerusalem from Olivet, the lament over the city, the scene in the Temple, the lonely return over the mountain at night, are the chief features of the first part. Part Two opens with the Supper of the Passover, and passes to the pathes of Gethsemane, the apperance of the hostile crowd, the forsaking of Jesus by his disciples, the judgement before Pilate, the tragedy and triumph of Calvary.

The canata is for chorus, with tenor and baritone solo parts. Guest soloists will be Richard Joaquim, tenor, soloist of the Boston University Chapel, and John H. Ring, baritone, of the choir of Trinity Church in Boston.

"Olivet to Calvary" is a dramatic and revenent work, and has become one of the best loved of Lenten cantatas.

The public is cordially invited to attend this musical service.

D. A. V. HI-LITES

At the last Chapter Meeting, the annual election of officers was held with the following results: Commander, Walter Gustus; Sr. Vice Commander, William Lynch; Jr. Vice Commander, John D'Amore; Treasurer, Joseph Sullivan; Adjutant, John Davis; and Chaplain, Peter LePore. There will be a joint installation of officers of the Chapter and Auxiliary on April 19.

National Headquarters has expressed some concern about the great number of unauthorized people who travel around soliciting funds under the guise of being representatives of veterans' organizations, working for the benefit of hospitalized veterans. The D. A. V. has its annual For-Get-Me-Not Drive for this purpose, which is authorized by the National Headquarters of the D. A. V. The Forget-Me-Nots have a small tag on them upon which is printed the official name and seal of the organization. Everyone should avoid these other strangers with their cigar boxes full of little American flag pins and the undecorated overseas hats. This in the usual uniform of the chislers. Make sure the person you donate your money to has some official badge of recognition, such as a hat with the name of his organization on it or a lapel badge with the seal of his organization thereon. Helping our hospitalized veterans is a most worthy and charitable gesture, but we must be careful lest we fill the pockets of these parasites.
